

THE EVENING STAR.
WASHINGTON.
WEDNESDAY, July 3, 1896.
CROSBY S. NOTES, Editor.
THE EVENING STAR has a regular and permanent staff of circulation much more than three times as large as that of any other paper, morning or evening, published in Washington. As a News and Advertising Medium it has no competitor.

THE STAR BY MAIL.
Persons leaving the city for any period can have The Star mailed to them to any address in the United States or Canada, by ordering it at this office, in person or by letter, or postal card. Terms: 13 cents per week; 25 cents for two weeks, or 50 cents per month. Invariably in advance. Subscribers changing their address from one Post-office to another should give the last address as well as the new one.

What Christian Endeavor Means.
By this time even the most unconcerned among Washingtonians must have rational ideas as to what the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor is, so much has been printed about the organization that a plea of ignorance would hardly be received. But only a minority of those who are ready to welcome the Endeavorers have given any thought to the secular significance of the Society. Formed in a Congregational Church and nurtured wholly by religious bodies of various denominations, it is not remarkable that the public is inclined to measure Endeavor usefulness by its purely religious achievements. This measurement is not displeasing to the Endeavorers; in fact they insist most strenuously that the Society of Christian Endeavor is first and last and always a religious society. It has, says President Clark, social and literary and other features, but it is neither a social nor literary society. The platform of principles accepted generally by the societies declares that "the purely religious features of the organization shall always be paramount. The Society of Christian Endeavor centers about the prayer meeting." Yet the worldly man will err egregiously if he imagines that the organization's influence is circumscribed. The spirit which actuates the three million Endeavorers cannot be so hedged about that it will not make appearance in other than religious fields. Fidelity to Christian Endeavor principles means the best of good citizenship. All the teachings of the organization encourage men and women to daily life on the highest plane of earthly, everyday existence, and to these teachings the vast majority of Endeavorers respond with enthusiasm. How much this means to the republic no one can now calculate, but that it is one of the most important factors in our progress toward the best available civilization will not be denied. When the more active young people of all evangelical denominations combine to improve the conditions of human existence their energies must bring about material betterment in a great many matters with which the Society, as a society, is not supposed to be directly concerned. Careful management of the organization may easily and speedily result in yet more marvelous increase of membership, but supposing that the number does not overstep the three million line it must be evident that the nation will be inestimably better off because of the work which is being done by those whose representatives are to be in session here for several days. Practical Christianity is the power that must sooner or later relieve the nation of the straining incubus of "practical" politics; will work that which has been sneered at as millennialism; will wipe out the blot of municipal corruption that now stains the reputation of many cities; will give us better laws and make certain the enforcement of every statute. Practical Christianity is not a stranger in Washington. The Endeavorers who come here will be met by Washingtonians the representatives of whose lives is on the city. Behind the reception committees stand the residents of the National Capital who, unimpaired of religious beliefs and denominational divisions, are one in their desire to make the Fifteenth International Convention the most delightful and most memorable of all the gatherings ever held by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor.

Defeated Yale.
Yale's crew at Henley made a gallant fight but was beaten. Every true American had hoped for a Yale victory but for several days before the race there had been little solid material upon which to base confidence. When the crew of this country's competent critics declared every member of the organization to be in the finest physical condition, but for some reason or other the crew never appeared in anything like as good form on the other side of the Atlantic as it did here. Then there was waste of time and energy in unsatisfactory experiments, foolishly permitted at the last moment. All the circumstances considered Yale rowed a good race but when the Leander won it was the expected that happened.

Chasing the Lynchers.
Gov. Lowndes has offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest of the Cocking lynchers, and a similar reward for the capture of any or all of the men who lynched Randolph. Maryland's chief executive was moved to this action by his belief that the sheriffs of Charles and Montgomery counties had failed to do their duty. To a representative of The Star the governor expressed regret that the law did not give him the power to remove those officials. The sheriffs in question now have double opportunities; if they are so-minded they can at once redeem their reputations as officers and earn a thousand dollars each.

The gold democrats declare that they will not bolt, but do not bind themselves not to make trouble.
Mr. Hill's temporary chairmanship was more than usually transitory in its nature.
Farmer Bland is doing his level best to make hay while the sun shines.
The Chicago Platform.
Those men who advocated a campaign upon the single issue of silver have been defeated at Chicago. The extremists on many issues have triumphed. Not the McLeans, but the Altgelds and the Tillmans have written the platform. Free coinage as an independent act by this government is in it, but there is much else besides, and such that is of a startling and complicating character.
Silver leads, but is coupled with an attack on the national banks. Those institutions, though not by name, are condemned, and the proposition is laid down that "all paper money shall be issued directly by the Treasury Department." What becomes of the question of state banks, in which the south was until recently so very much interested?
The tariff question is handled gingerly.

The deliverance is in striking contrast with that of four years ago. Taxation for revenue only is insisted upon, but not in ringing or aggressive terms. The necessity of protecting labor is recognized, but the laboring man is assured that this may best be done not by high duties on foreign-made goods, but by keeping out the pauper labor of other countries. The Wilson bill, which the President would not sign, because, as he charged, it failed to redeem the party's promises to the people, is to stand until the money question has been disposed of.

The plank in favor of an income tax will be warmly resented in the east. The proposition has repeatedly been denounced as populist. Mr. Hill's sole reason for refusing to vote for the Wilson bill was because it embraced a provision for an income tax.

Gov. Altgeld scores a distinct personal triumph in the plank respecting the appeal to federal courts in local affairs. The reference is to the Debs' strike. And yet in the part he played in that matter the President received the praise and support of every democratic Senator in Congress. Mr. Daniel, the temporary presiding officer at Chicago, endorsed the President's action in a speech of much warmth.

The plank respecting the civil service is a curiosity. It declares for the merit system, and yet against the security of a man in his place after he has reached it by good service. The deliverance is, in effect, a clumsily phrased bid for support on the old spoils basis. Nothing more contradictory in terms has appeared in print since the famous distich wherein the permission to go in swimming was coupled with the solemn injunction not to go near the water.

The plank against a third term appropriately goes with a platform designed as a repudiation of Mr. Cleveland from top to bottom. And that will probably meet with the secret sympathy of a good many sound money democrats, who have complained that the third term specter injured their cause.
The platform, as a whole, is a bid for the disaffected of all parties. Ex-republicans, fresh from their old camp; ex-democrats, in the persons of populists row several years old, and democrats chafing under eastern domination, are invited to get together and are encouraged to believe that by doing so they can sweep the country. Sops are thrown in every direction. Can such a play win? The answer is in a state of great unrest. The number of the disaffected is large. But when the people come to consider what is at stake, will they in-dorse at the polls a policy so comprehensive in new and revolutionary expedients?

Two Manual Training Institutes.
It is understood that the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives is engaged in the task of preparing the school estimates for the next fiscal year. Suitable provision will, of course, be made, so far as the committee can make it, for the proper maintenance of all the existing features of the public school system, but those features alone will not satisfy the public. For three years, we believe, the committee and the board have recommended material extension of the manual training facilities and have urged upon the Commissioners and upon Congress the necessity for appropriations sufficient to establish here two manual training institutes: one for white children and one for colored children. Those recommendations have never received the consideration they deserved; last year the Commissioners cut them out of the estimates and thus put a stop to every possibility of favorable action by Congress. Since then there has been steady increase of demand for such institutions, and there is now popular insistence that will not be silenced. It is therefore reasonably certain that the Committee on Ways and Means will renew its recommendations as to advanced manual training, and it is almost sure that the District Commissioners will in-dorse the request of the committee and board for a sum of money sufficient to give us such manual-training schools as are doing admirable work in other cities. Argument as to the necessity for such schools would seem to be superfluous. The people know what they want and will not rest satisfied until the want no longer exists. Strong as is the plea in behalf of white boys and girls who ask for manual training instead of academic education beyond the grade schools, it is still stronger in behalf of the colored youth. This was made plain in a forceful and timely address delivered recently by Dr. F. J. Shadd before the Second Baptist Lyceum of this city. A member of the Board of School Trustees, and an active worker in all that promises to elevate his race, Dr. Shadd has satisfied himself, as he doubtless did his hearers, that the hope of thousands of colored boys and girls in this city lies in the success of manual training extension. Other local leaders of colored Washington have said the same thing and are prepared to keep on saying it until Congress does its duty in this extremely important matter.

The Christian Endeavor assemblage will be quite as large as the convention crowd at Chicago, and is not likely to make nearly as much trouble.

SHOOTING STARS.
A Disappointment.
He scrambled wildly to the spot where the bullet was being posted. When he reached a place where he could read the announcements his jaw dropped and his lip curled.
"It's just news from the convention, ain't it?" he remarked.
"Yes," replied the man next to him. "What did you expect?"
"I thought it was from the ball game."
And he sank back through the crowd and boarded a street car.

Change.
New terrors now the old efface, Man's woe he can't dispel; The campaign slogans now displace The grousing college yell.
A Man With a Record.
"There goes a man who has been the immediate cause of more trouble and excitement in a political gathering than anybody else I know of."
"I don't remember having seen his picture in any of the cartoons."
"No. A great many people do not even know his name. But he has done just what I said."
"Who is he? A financial agitator?"
"No. He was sergeant-at-arms in a convention."

The C. E. Young Women.
Like the sunlight on the water, as it shimmers in the breeze;
Like the dew-drops as they tremble on the overhanging trees;
Like the surf that scatters treasures in a wild, prismatic spray;
Like the glint of golden tresses where the sunshine loves to play;
Like the jeweled shower of summer, with enough and some to spare,
Is the sparkle of the badges, badges everywhere.
Yet gems are often vanquished by the rivalry that lies
In the scintillating glory of a pair of merry eyes;
And the wave that tosses radiance in profusion from the sea,
Does not charm us like the laughter that comes bubbling, light and free;
For there isn't any other fascination to compare
With the wearers of these badges, badges, badges everywhere.

We've made another stroke

—that will clear away most of the fine summer suits, of which we've yet too many.

We've plunged the knife mercilessly into the suits which are marked and have been selling at $12 to $15—cut them down to the uniform price of $7, Cash or Credit.

We've included all the finest cassimeres, chevots, tweeds and mixtures—the season's choicest productions—masterpieces of the most celebrated manufacturers.

Every size is in the lot and every size man can be fitted perfectly.

There are cutaways for those who want them—there are sacks—single and double breasted. Every single suit is from our regular stock, and not one was "bought up" for the occasion.

We never have offered such values at these points as at $1.98. Just as we said yesterday, the whole thousand pairs may not hold out the balance of the week. We don't see how they can with such buying, for there isn't a pair worth less than $3 to $5.

Now that so many of you bicyclists have been here after these rare suit values you'll come right along when you need anything else. We get praise on all sides. Still some left of those Cover Suits at $1.98.

Plain Cheviot Suits at $5.98.

Washington Views.
Sixty-size Photographs, neatly bound, for only 15c—a price complimentary to visiting C. E. Will be mailed if desired.

Souvenir Spoons.
Warranted Sterling Silver, and only 60c. Occasional views of White House, Capitol, U. S. Treasury, Mount Vernon, Washington Monument.

If in a Hurry, Go to the Palais Royal.

You may be unexpectedly called upon to entertain visiting C. E. You may need extra Sheets, Pillow Cases, China Ware, etc., etc. You'll find everything for bed room, dining room or kitchen at this G street corner; reliable in quality, least in price.

1,000 dozen Handkerchiefs.

More than three hundred dozen are in the window and little less than seven hundred dozen are in the store. And these are supplementary to regular stock, being the largest single purchase lately consummated in the eastern states, New York not excepted. Prices were paid and will be asked that are the least on record for Handkerchiefs of equal qualities.

5c 12c

5 cents each for choice of more than 400 dozen Handkerchiefs, the actual values of which are 12c to 25c each.

Those with borders of flowers in natural colors are 25c Handkerchiefs; those with lace edges are 25c Handkerchiefs; those with hem-stitched borders in fast colors are 12c Handkerchiefs; those for men, in all white and with fancy borders, are 12c Handkerchiefs. All these and many others are only 5 cents for choice.

In chapter 3 of the Acts we are told of the beautiful gates of the temple. An ideal representation of these gates, made entirely of Handkerchiefs, fills one of the G. St. show windows. It will be quoted as one of the sights of Washington, and will challenge the admiration of residents not less than visitors.

It may interest you to learn that the window in which is this representation is the largest show window in the United States.

Two Miles of Laces.

Another sensational purchase and sale—so difficult to tell of, because the unexaggerated truth reads like fiction.

48c 29c

48c yard for choice of 1,645 yards of Improved Light-weight Oriental Laces—the filmy ornamentation so fashionable on lawn and dimity dresses. The widths are 6 to 9 inches, the actual values are 60c to $1 yard. Thus ends the 1896 summer season of New York's leading importer—to our mutual profit.

Miles of Ribbons.

Residents will interest the ladies of the visiting C. E.—in sending them to see these miles of Ribbons at the Palais Royal. Said to be the second largest gathering in the United States.

Buying and selling such enormous quantities enables prices to you what the cost is to the merchant who deals in ordinary quantities. To illustrate—19c and 25c yard for best Taffeta Silk Ribbons, plain and fancy effects, 3 to 5 inches wide, in white, black and twenty-five most wanted and scarcest shades.

BEST SASH RIBBONS CHEAP.

8 inches wide to 12 inches wide. 25c Worth 75c and Up to $2 yard.

Daniell & Sons of Broadway, New York, also secured a supply. They crowded their store with the following advertisement in the World: SASH RIBBONS—The most attractive sale ever held in this country. Most remarkable values in rich Moires, Double-face Satin Stripes, Fine Gros-Grains, very Rich Brocades, Cream-edge Surahs, Lyons Novelty, etc. All colors, embracing white, cream, black, rose, blue, lilac, cardinal, etc. Widths, 8 to 12 inclusive. 25c yard. Worth from 75c to $2 yd.

4,323 Best Japanese Fans.

4c to 39c for fans worth 10c to $1. They are the 1896 Samples of the Japanese Fan Co. of 579 Broadway, New York. Think of more than four thousand fans and every one different. Think of only 4c to 39c for newest of new Empire Fans in silk and parchment, black and colors, hand painted and gold embroidered. Such bargains never before came to Washington.

Tight-Rolling Umbrellas,

Men's sizes and Ladies' sizes. 98c Some worth $1.50 and Some worth $2.50.

There's usually not much demand for Umbrellas in July. We have bought and will sell at little prices. 98 cents for choice of 5,000 Gloria Umbrellas with 26 and 28-inch paragon frames, steel rods, natural wood handles, plain and silver trimmed. They are the superior tight-rolling Umbrellas, equally serviceable for sun or rain.

Follmer Clogg's Sample Umbrellas.

$6.98 for choice. Worth $10 to $18 each. The handles make them so valuable. Real ivory, pearl, real gold and solid silver—all works of art. If selected for presentation we will engrave initials or monogram free of charge.

Art Needlework Cheap.

Another misfortune brings us and you the bargains of a lifetime. F. N. Stout of Grand st., New York, has failed and his well-known superior goods have been secured at ridiculously little prices.

Price Hints.
